Gateway employees still want a union

You and your co-workers are enthusiastically re-signing BCGEU membership cards because you still want the BCGEU to be your union.

You got a chance to vote for the BCGEU in October of last year when we made your application to the Labour Relations Board (LRB). Gateway argued that the vote should not be counted because the dealers and slot attendants should not be in the same bargaining unit as the dealer supervisors and slot supervisors

The LRB decided that although slot supervisors can be in the same bargaining unit as everyone else, dealer supervisors could not. As a result, the vote has not been counted.

You can still have a union

We have filed for a reconsideration of the ruling. But even if the current LRB decision stands, you can still have a union. The current LRB decision only means that you may have more than one bargaining unit at your workplace.

Many of you have already re-signed your BCGEU cards because you still want the job security, fair wages, and recognition of seniority that a union can provide. This is great news because it gets you closer to having a vote in your workplace.

Talk to Craig Proctor or Malina Merritt if you need a BCGEU membership card.
